A senior scientist with pharmaceutical development experience

We are looking for enthusiastic professional scientists with exceptional writing, communication, organisational project management and leadership skills, with demonstrated ability to bring projects to a successful completion. You should have a strong scientific background (at least MSc, PhD or equivalent strong relevant experience), preferably but not necessarily in pharmacology, toxicology and/or metabolism.

You will be asked to originate scientific documents and collate, analyse and communicate fully interpreted and critically appraised experimental data. In addition, you will utilise and develop your specialist knowledge and expertise to evaluate novel pharmaceutical and functional food products and identify potential targets for the health areas of interest to the Company.

Depending on your background and experience, you will be also asked to function as a broad based Scientist with specific responsibility for implementing the design and conduct of non-clinical (pharmacology, toxicology and metabolism) studies.
